

The Olympic Games bring people from different countries together for a few weeks, which is wonderful. Also, the sportsmen and women train hard to do their very best. In the same way, we should work hard to lead good lives. We need to try every day to become better ourselves and to tell people about the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh, because these teachings will bring peace to the world.

Fill in the missing words

"strive and until the world of becomes the world of; the world of the world of; the be turned into the branch; the of hatred become the of the of and the noise of the gun the voice of the; the soldiers of death the of; all the nations of the world nation; all as race; and all national anthems into one

"...strive and endeavour until the world of war becomes the world of peace; the world of darkness the world of light; ... the sword be turned into the olive branch; the flash of hatred become the flame of the love of God and the noise of the gun the voice of the Kingdom; the soldiers of death the soldiers of life; all the nations of the world one nation; all races as one race; and all national anthems harmonized into one melody." 'Abdu'l-Bahá